CALL FOR PAPERS

Reproductive governance and mobilities in Europe and Latin America: questioning reproductive justice and rights in a context of austerity and fertility decline

DEADLINE

10th of January 2025

panels will only take place in person

AGAUR Agència de Gestió d'Ajuts Universitaris i de Recerca

In an era marked by economic austerity and declining fertility rates, the landscape of reproductive justice and rights is undergoing profound transformations across Europe and Latin America.

This international conference aims to explore the intricate dynamics of national and international reproductive governance. It will also analyse internal and cross-border mobilities with a focus on relevant issues related to the impact of austerity measures on reproductive justice and rights.

Key topics addressed include:

- The consequences of governmental policies on access to reproductive healthcare and services.
- Cross-border (non-)reproductive care and its implications for reproductive justice and rights.
- The role of medical and non-medical mobilities in shaping reproductive futures.
- Reproductive cross-border mobility of people, technologies, bio-products, expertise, and finance.
- Intersectional reproductive experiences of gender, race, disability, age, and class.
- The influence of nation-state policies on mobility and reproductive justice and rights.
- Reproductive politics and governance in Europe and Latin America, and the cases that challenge them.
- Reproductive activism and its role in advocating for reproductive rights and equitable reproductive justice.

To view the complete list of panels and submit your proposal to the panel organisers through the online form on the webpage, please follow the link below to access the conference site:
